

OFF-SKI ACTIVITIES

OFF-PISTE DISCOVERIES

Adventures unfold on snowshoes beneath the fir trees, on a toboggan or in a sled drawn by a team of dogs. Those seeking even greater heights can take to the ice with ice axes and crampons, or launch themselves 65 metres above the ground on a zipline. Snow here promises a myriad of experiences. The hardest part is choosing!

In Les 3 Vallées, the summits can be reached just as easily without skis.

The invaluable pedestrian pass: the ideal way to get around and enjoy the panoramas from the peaks, strolls at altitude and restaurant terraces.

Available for a day or a week, it offers unlimited access to a large part of the ski area.

ZOOM - Have a N'Ice day

Guaranteed thrills. In a magnificent Alpine setting, ice climbing invites thrill seekers to scale frozen walls and waterfalls using crampons and ice axes.

Supervised by high mountain guides, this accessible and safe activity combines effort and technique, creating unforgettable frozen memories. At Courchevel, an 18 metre artificial ice wall allows everyone from the age of 12 to try or improve, while at Val Thorens the boldest set off with guides to conquer the natural icefalls of the Vanoise.

AND ALSO ... NEW!

Race down the Saulire by the fireside

Courchevel unveils a board game where you go down the legendary slope by answering general knowledge questions.

The players/skiers slide through three stages — Schuss, Super G, Olympic Jump — by answering questions on gastronomy, nature, sport and local anecdotes.

A made in Courchevel creation, fun, enriching and rooted in the world of the mountain!

An après-ski gallery

Contemporary art settles throughout the winter in St Martin de Belleville.

The Galerie d'Altitude exhibits a selection of works by artists from the renowned Galerie l'Antichambre based in Chambéry.

From photography to painting, including video and sculpture, all the disciplines of contemporary art are revealed at their best in this mountain setting.

The new trendy nest of Black Crows

In Courchevel 1850, the French brand with the chevron opens its concept store!

An immersion in its universe, as design as it is technical, for its visitors, who can test ski models before purchase — for a day or a week —, personalise their poles thanks to laser engraving or simply enjoy a strong coffee.

In après-ski, the atmosphere rises a notch with electro music and DJ sets.
